Portfolio notes

Fonts
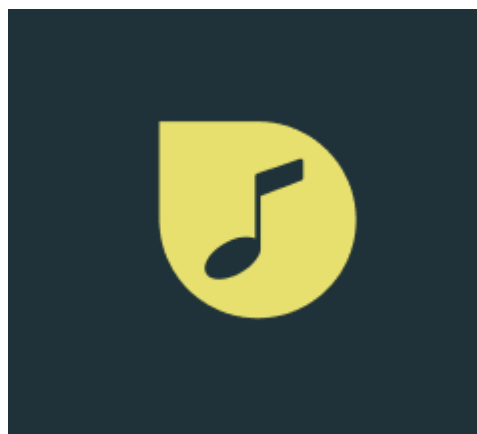

Title font: Signika, font weight: 700, font style: normal

Subtitle font: Orienta, font weight: 700, font style: normal

New color palette

E9E059	E6C548	E4AB37	E29127	1A333A
Minion Yellow	Maize Crayola	Goldenrod	Carrot Orange	Outer Space Crayola

New logo (one with the name, one only showing the symbol)

The logo can be used in a variation of animations, I have a few sliding animations in mind but they didn't really work out. In the end, I used the small logo and wrote code to randomly spawn a few of them when the site is loaded and make them fly up like balloons. The thought of it came up randomly when I was trying out JavaScript.

Design rationale

I wanted the website to look very clean and straightforward. That's why the only "complex" design structure is the first section with the text boxes where I wrote information about myself. The rest is just vertically aligned.

I introduced hover animations to the text boxes for more effect, plus the title of the boxes would turn black-ish when you hover over it as well.

Afterwards, the embedded YouTube video was essential for me, because most of my work is uploaded there. So I found some tutorials on how to embed a video and that was basically all I needed.

Because I don't only have my music to show, I added a slideshow with a few pictures of my modeling/programming work, which are not really all that because I don't have access to them on Madeira so I just took a few photos I had saved locally.

Next, I found that I wanted people to be able to contact me over the site so I added a contact box via JS.

Eventually, I added a small footer at the bottom left corner to make it look more professional ^^

Everything is understandably following the color palette and the typography above.